Grand Jury Reports With 17 Indictments Governor Not Called

filed across from their chamber of se-cret meeting in the Capitol to the Ju-revealed in any of the true bills redictary building promptly at noon to- turned this morning? day and filed a report with Judge Gear.

Seventeen indictments were returned. In fifteen of these cases the parties named as defendants are not yet in custody and the true bills were trict are invited to attend a meeting at therefore ordered placed on the secret district headquarters tonight. There open file was an indictment against a question of a straight vote will be dis-Porto Rican, Eugenio Arroyo, charged cussed from every standpoint. with marder in the first degree for the alleged killing of a fellow Porto Rican, SHORT MARRIAGE CONTRACTS Adolpho Riveira by name. The other was an indictment, alleging robbery, against Robert Kalilaa, a Hawailan. Both of these defendants are in custody.

Judge Gear excused the Grand Jurors from further service until Wednes the way of investigation. In the meanwhile the jurors being divided up into committees with separate matters for examination, the general work of gath ering information concerning public institutions will continue informally committees reporting at the next regu lar session of the inquisition.

Today all members of the Grand Jury were supplied with copies of the report of the Superintendent of Public Works just issued.

Deputy Attorney General W. S. Fleming waited on the investigators today. There was much to be done. The work of finally arranging indict ments in the seventeen cases referred to was rushed so that the jury could report to Judge Gear by noon.

Witnesses before the Grand Jury this morning included police officers and a large number of Hawaiians.

It was expected that the Governor would be called, the jury having previously requested that the Executive present himself today, but, for some reason, his presence was not required today; probably for the reason that the Governor, in an interview published in The Bulletin, expressed the hope That the Grand Jury would not require of him at this time the report of the doings and findings of Detective Hatter. The Governor stated that the effectiveness of the work performed by the Pinkerton man might be material ly reduced by the production of the report at this time. He hoped that the result of the detective's investigations would show itself eventually through other channels.

Governor Carter neither appeared before the jury today nor did he send any report to that body.

Several of the members of the in quisition realized today for the first time that there exists behind the dais in the Hall of Representatives where they hold their sessions, a tiny compartment or apartment which was used as a retiring room in the days of royalty, when the Capital was the Palace This apartment can be entered from the rear verands of the building and also has a door opening, between the curtains, on to the dais, where the Speaker sits during the Legislature and where the foreman of the Grand Jury now makes himself comfortable.
